Tells the story of a group of highly competitive and mutually suspicious dynasties, and also of a continent uniquely prone to interference from ‘semi-detached’ elements, such as Russia, the Ottoman Empire, Britain and the United States.

Fortæller om luftskibene, der blev anvendt under 1. verdenskrig, om deres indsats og kampen imod dem.

How long will you be terrified by the devil? How long will you be running away from the threat of the devil when you are equipped to the fullest to fight him? How long will you continue to cry when the PRINCE OF PEACE is with you all the time? How long will you continue to fret yourself to death when the MIGHTY GOD is beside you? How long will you continue to behave funny when the EVERLASTING FATHER is inside of you? How long will you allow the counseling of the devil to prevail over you when you have a great COUNSELOR with you? How long will you continue to suffer when you have a WONDERFUL Son around you? Having the grace to battle with the devil is enormous but not enough when your focus on the war is not steadfast. David had the grace to battle Goliath with every focus on the strategies the Philistine leader is going to adopt in fighting him. Your focus to battle is as essential as the grace given to you to battle. It was David’s focus on the steps taken by the Goliath that made him to take the seven steps discussed in the previous chapter before he could defeat Goliath and prevailed upon him. What to eat, what to drink, what to wear, and all other earthly possessions are distractions to ‘war on earth’. These are the strategies employed by the devil to make sure the seed of the woman loses focus over what is going on between him and them. He ensures that man think always of what to eat, what to drink, what to wear, what type of car to ride, what kind of house to build or live in, and what and what to have on earth instead of focusing on the battle. The fear created in you was a strategy to lose focus as a result of what is happening in the world today to make the seed of the woman forget himself at the war front. Brethren, rise up to the challenges ahead of you. Refocus to the war on earth between you and the devil, recharge your spirit, take on the whole armor of God, march on to the war front, give the devil the battle back, reclaim your stolen mandate, restore for yourself the blessing of creation and obtain back the power to dominate the earth. There is a lot to battle with, but the most essential of them all is the battle to reclaim your spiritual and physical supremacy. How you warred on earth determines the outcome of your reward and success spiritually and physically. You must be free of all the injuries you have sustained by one reason or the other for you to get to the expected end. Knowing your errors or the errors of your ancestors will prove sufficient enough for you to take the war to the devil and gain supremacy over your life, your family and your environment. War on earth has a beginning. War over your life also has a beginning. War over your family has origination. There’s no smoke without fire says the wise. There’s no problem without a cause. This cause must be known before you embark upon the battle for supremacy. If you have gone through or still going through the pains, rise up to war against it. If you have suffered or still suffering a loss, it’s time of war against it. If you have been battered or still being battered, there’s no room to play; it’s time for war. If you have been brutalized or still being brutalized, give it a fight to survive. If you have been subjected to tears or still going through the tears, stop crying and battle it now. If you have been sorrowful or still being sorrowful, you have the weapons with you to battle it. If you have been rejected or still being rejected, stop crying foul; war against it. If you have been neglected or still being neglected, its obvious you must go to war against it. It’s only your fear and discouragements that can make you lose the war. But if you are courageous and be strong as the Lord God had charged you, there’s no way you are going to lose the battle. Can you imagine how favored you are for the Lord God being a man of war in support of your war against the Devil? Your winning the war is assured when you are ready.

Sparta was a small city which consistently punched above its weight in the affairs of classical Greece, happily meddling in the affairs of the other cities. For two centuries her warriors were acknowledged as second to none. Yet at only one period in its long history, in the late fourth and early third century BC, did the home of these grim warriors seem set to entrench itself as the dominant power in the Greek world. This period includes the latter stages of the Peloponnesian War from 412 BC to the Spartan victory in 402, and then down to the Spartan defeat by the Thebans at Leuctra in 371 BC, where it all began to unravel for the Spartan Empire. Surprisingly few previous books have covered the tumultuous first decades of the fourth century BC, particularly when compared to the ample coverage of the Peloponnesian War. As the authors explain, although the earlier period has the benefit of Thucydides’ magisterial history, the period covered here is actually well served by sources and well worthy of study. There are many interesting characters here, including Alcibiades, Lysander, Agesilaus, Pelopidas and Epaminondas, to name but a few. In addition there are several campaigns and battles that are reported in enough detail to make them interesting and comprehensible to the reader. Bob Bennett and Mike Roberts untangle the complexities of this important but unduly neglected period for the modern reader.

The battle for Guadalcanal that lasted from August 1942 to February 1943 was the first major American counteroffensive against the Japanese in the Pacific. The battle of Savo Island on the night of 9 August 1942, saw the Japanese inflict a sever defeat on the Allied force, driving them away from Guadalcanal and leaving the just-landed marines in a perilously exposed position. This was the start of a series of night battles that culminated in the First and Second battles of Guadalcanal, fought on the nights of 13 and 15 November. One further major naval action followed, the battle of Tassafaronga on 30 November 1942, when the US Navy once again suffered a severe defeat, but this time it was too late to alter the course of the battle as the Japanese evacuated Guadalcanal in early February 1943. This title will detail the contrasting fortunes experienced by both sides over the intense course of naval battles around the island throughout the second half of 1942 that did so much to turn the tide in the Pacific.

Based on records in the India Office Library the book is a detailed political and social history of the province of Balkh. It examines Bukharan-Afghan rivalry over Balkh and Britain’s support of Afghan annexation as part of its ‘Great Game’ policy.

Much has been written about the Battle of the Somme. From July through late November 1916, British, French, and German armies fought one of the costliest battles of the twentieth century. Well over a million casualties and only a few miles of ground gained by the Allies were the result when the battle ended. Little, however, has been written about the second battle which occurred simultaneously, this one in the skies above the Somme, where for the first time in the history of warfare a deliberate attempt was made to control the sky. The British Royal Flying Corps, under the resolute command of General Sir Hugh Trenchard, fought to gain air supremacy from the German Air Service. Trenchard believed that the best way to support the ground force was to dominate and control the sky above the battlefield. This air campaign was critical because of its impact on the doctrine and theory of air warfare which followed it. This study examines the efforts of the Royal Flying Corps to gain air supremacy against the German Air Service before and during the Battle of the Somme.

IN WHAT REGION OF THE WORLD CAN WE BEST GLIMPSE THE FUTURE? For much of the twentieth century, Europe dominated global attention. Two world wars were won and lost on its battlefields, and the great ideological struggles of the Cold War were played out in its cities. The Atlantic Ocean was the locus of international power. This is no longer the case, as bestselling author Robert D. Kaplan deftly proves in Monsoon. He shows how the rise of India, Pakistan, China, Indonesia, Burma and Oman, among others, represents a crucial shift in the global balance of power. It is in ‘Monsoon Asia’ that the fight for democracy, energy independence and religious freedom will be lost or won. It is here that European interests are being replaced by Chinese and Indian influences, and where the often tense dialogue is taking place between Islam and the West. It is towards this region that global powers need to shift their focus if they are to remain dominant in the new century.

By exploring England’s fanatical consumption of the so-called books of the brave conquistadors, this book shows how tales of love and arms mystified global conquest (in such places as Mexico, Peru, Guiana, California, and Australia) and rooted the idea of English empire as a civilized alternative to the cruelty of Spanish conquest.

Told through the eyes of rugby identities from around the world, this is a fascinating story of a once staunchly amateur sport now fully engulfed in the clutches of professionalism.

What happened when America’s richest car company, producing many thousands of cars per year, went head to head with Ferrari of Italy in the mid ‘60s? This is the story of an immovable force coming up against the stubbornness of an unmovable object - that is, Ford against Ferrari. Enzo Ferrari, whose company produced less than four hundred cars per year in 1963, wasn’t going to bow to Ford after he had turned down its offer to buy his company. The only place left to duke it out was on the racetracks of the world ... and one in particular: Le Mans ‘66.
The world’s ‘wait and watch’ strategy has ended. China has turned mere rocks into dangerous fortresses as they incrementally constructed and then militarized artificial islands in the South China Sea that the United Nation’s international court ruled did not belong to them. Meanwhile, in neighboring countries, patient efforts of good faith and diplomacy have been met by China’s brash incursions, provocations, and illegal activity to the astonishment of those who have watched their land, sea, and air rights be threatened. China’s “Might Makes Right” policies and naval build-up has grown increasingly alarming as China uses high-pressure tactics, promissory loans, and insistence that they are the rightful “Middle Kingdom” with historic rights to this region and elsewhere in Asia. China’s reach has wrapped around the world with open arms, generosity, and its utopian vision of a win-win spirit, offering numerous countries loans and support based upon a myth that there are no strings attached. In 2016, the International Court of Justice ruled against China, saying that its “historic right” to the South China Sea is unfounded and the littoral states have sovereignty over the islands, shoals, and natural resources in their nation’s surrounding seas. China ignored this ruling as states grappled with the COVID-19 pandemic, ensuring that other states’ oil was not drilled, other states’ fishermen could not catch fish, and other states could not develop the islands in their domain by blocking their access. China’s “Century of Humiliation” has ended, but its legacy profoundly impacts its people. During COVID-19, China doubled-down on nationalist policies, catching weaker states in the crosshairs of intensifying U.S.-China tensions. China has positioned itself to swoop in one-by-one to overtake the islands and resources as they did when they took Scarborough Shoal from the Philippines. Raging Waters brings to the foreground current critical issues. Raging Waters was written for readers to explore topics in an approachable manner, by thoroughly deconstructing the issues surrounding the South China Sea. This easy-to-read text provides a comprehensive breakdown of South-China-Sea-related topics, including China’s economic growth, military expansion, state intervention, debt diplomacy, human rights, widespread surveillance, and political influence.

The old rivalries between these three counties are around as long as the GAA itself, and as hard-fought and intensely felt now as any time over the past hundred and twenty years. This book honours that great tradition and celebrates the wins and losses that brought excitement, pain and intensity to the followers of these three counties. The book also examines how it is that these three kings rise to the top year after year. These hurling moments live on in the imagination and in conversation, forever being honed and revisited. The best sporting moments in the lives of hurling followers. The careers of the star players - Ring, Doyle, Keher, Carey, Barry-Murphy, O hAilpín, Shefflin, and more - are followed here in loving detail. This is the full story of these three amazing counties - the highlights, rivalries and the greatest matches are explored in all their fervour and desperation. Illustrated with action-packed photos.

In just four weeks in the summer of 1941 the German Wehrmacht wrought unprecedented destruction on four Soviet armies, conquering central Ukraine and killing or capturing three quarters of a million men. This was the Battle of Kiev - one of the largest and most decisive battles of World War II and, for Hitler and Stalin, a battle of crucial importance. For the first time, David Stahel charts the battle’s dramatic course and aftermath, uncovering the irreplaceable losses suffered by Germany’s ‘panzer groups’ despite their battlefield gains, and the implications of these losses for the German war effort. He illuminates the inner workings of the German army as well as the experiences of ordinary soldiers, showing that with the Russian winter looming and Soviet resistance still unbroken, victory came at huge cost and confirmed the turning point in Germany’s war in the East.

A collection of eyewitness accounts of the struggle that raged in the skies over occupied Europe after the Battle of Britain during World War II. Expertly selected and interwoven by Stephen Darlow, Victory Fighters centers on the stories of six pilots and one navigator, the telling of which covers every aspect of this battle over land and sea. The author describes and analyzes the relevant command decisions from the highest level down, and against this background the men give their accounts from the start of their flying careers through to the preparations for operation Overlord, the invasion itself, the liberation of France, the crossing of the Rhine, to the end of the war in Europe on VE-Day. Through their eyes, the reader is introduced to a series of different tasks and situations, a multitude of aircraft types—Sunderlands, Mustangs, Tempests, Typhoons, Spifires, Whirlwinds, Mosquitoes—and a great many squadrons. Having conducted numerous interviews and undertaken diligent research of documents, diaries and correspondence, the author has produced a fitting testament to these men and the countless others they represent.

Before the "Big Three," even before the Model T, the race for dominance in the American car market was fierce, fast, and sometimes farcical. Car Crazy takes readers back to the passionate and reckless years of the early automobile era, from 1893, when the first US-built auto was introduced, through 1908, when General Motors was founded and Ford's Model T went on the market. The motorcar was new, paved roads few, and devotees of this exciting and unregulated technology battled with citizens who considered the car a dangerous scourge, wrought by the wealthy, that was shattering a more peaceful way of life. Among the pioneering competitors were Ransom E. Olds, founder of Olds Motor Works and creator of a new company called REO; Olds' cutthroat new CEO Frederic L. Smith; William C. "Billy" Durant of Buick Motor Company (and soon General Motors); and inventor Henry Ford. They shared a passion for innovation, both mechanical and entrepreneurial, but their maniacal pursuit of market share would also involve legal manipulation, vicious smear campaigns, and zany publicity stunts -- including a wild transcontinental car race that transfixed the public. Their war on wheels ultimately culminated in a courtroom battle that would shape the American car industry forever. Based on extensive original research, Car Crazy is a page-turning story of popular culture, business, and sport at the dawn of the twentieth century, filled with compelling, larger-than-life characters, each an American original.

Wolves are extremely magnificent creatures. Wolves mate for life. The clan has a solid social structure, in which all adults participate in the upbringing of the young. Wolves are fiercely loyal to their mates, with a strong sense of family whilst upholding individualism. Wolves are totally loyal to the pack but do not give up their identity to the pack.

The kingdom of heaven through the church and powers of hell through Islam are in for the battle of supremacy between the Holy Bible and the Quran. We have seen the death of Christianity in many nations because our ministerial fathers did not train men and women to be mighty in the Scriptures like Paul, Apollos and others. If Nigeria inter alia, is going to be the burial ground of Islam, then we need men and women who are mighty, eloquent and fervent in the Scriptures from Genesis to Revelation. Islam and other gates of hell can only die and be buried when Christians in Nigeria, America, Russia, Britain, Germany, North and South Korea and in all the nations 'grow mighty in the Scriptures' through the knowledge of the 'Mighty Scriptures.' Core and unadulterated professional knowledge of the Scriptures must replace the wrong theologies of all the churches.

If there is a fundamental truth of geopolitics, it is this: whoever controls the core of Europe controls the entire continent, and whoever controls all of Europe can dominate the world. Over the past five centuries, a rotating cast of kings and conquerors, presidents and dictators have set their sights on the European heartland, desperate to seize this pivotal area or at least prevent it from falling into the wrong hands. From Charles V and Napoleon to Bismarck and Cromwell, from Hitler and Stalin to Roosevelt and Gorbachev, nearly all the key power players of modern history have staked their titanic visions on this vital swath of land. In Europe, prizewinning historian Brendan Simms presents an authoritative account of the past half-millennium of European history, demonstrating how the battle for mastery there has shaped the modern world.Beginning in 1453, when the collapse of the Byzantine Empire laid Europe open to Ottoman incursion and prompted the dramatic expansion of the Holy Roman Empire, Simms leads readers through the epic struggle for the heart of Europe. Stretching from the Low Countries through Germany and into the North Italian plain, this relatively compact zone has historically been the richest and most productive on earth. For hundreds of years, its crucial strategic importance stoked a seemingly unending series of conflicts, from the English Civil War to the French Revolution to the appalling world wars of the 20th century. But when Europe is in harmony, Simms shows, the entire world benefits—a lesson that current leaders would do well to remember. A bold and compelling work by a renowned scholar, Europe integrates religion, politics, military strategy, and international relations to show how history—and Western civilization itself—was forged in the crucible of Europe.
